Our People

For the past 7 years partners Dean White and Kostas Mitropoulos have been working together to protect small to medium enterprise from the rapidly changing and increasingly sophisticated IT security breaches from external, as well as (increasingly), internal raiders and nuisance makers.

Realising that these businesses could not afford the high level of in-house security protection than large corporations could and seeing the threat to their livelihood Dean and Kostas set out to use their uniquely appropriate qualifications and experience to develop a system to offer them affordable outsourced protection of the same quality and level of security as large corporations.

Kostas Mitropolos

With a Bachelor of Science (Physics), a post graduate Bachelor of Communication Engineering and a Diploma in Business Management Kostas was destined to carve his own niche in the IT industry.

Kostas has a wealth of experience starting out as a Business Systems Analyst and moving on to Strategy development Infrastructure and services development planning, Risk Management, Development of security policy and procedures, Management of Security Operations Centres and Development and Management of global security service provision, maintenance and support facilities.

This background led Kostas to understand the risks involved and devastation that can be caused by security breaches at all levels.
